

CORRIGAN CLAIMS HE WILL NOT FLY BACK OVER OCEAN

Flier Who Flew Atlantic "By Mistake" Plans Tour of Ireland

TO RETURN BY BOAT

Has Desire to Visit Graves of His Grandparents in Old Country

By Peter Kilroy

(1 N. S. Staff Correspondent)

DUBLIN, July 19.—(INS)—It's home by boat and no mistake about that, for Douglas Corrigan, the Californian who flew from New York to Dublin "by error."

"I won't do it again. I promise you that," said Corrigan today, well-rested after a good night's sleep.

"I'm going to stay in Ireland for another couple of days, then I hope to get myself and my plane back to America by boat."

For the moment, this 31-year-old aerial adventurer from Los Angeles, who "bootlegged" a jaunt across the ocean in defiance of miscellaneous laws of nature and man, was concentrating on two sentimental objectives.

He wanted to tour Ireland and visit the graves of his grandparents, in the company of his host, American Minister John D. Cudahy.

And he also hoped to see the beginning of another trans-Atlantic flight, that of the British "pick-a-back" double plane, due to start from Ireland tomorrow.

"I have no intention of flying back." That statement was as puzzling as the whole story of the American's bizarre flight—which found Corrigan and his $900, nine-year-old "crate" winding up in Dublin when he ostensibly set out for Los Angeles.

"I won't fly back," he said. "A one-way passage is enough for me at the moment. But believe me, my old ship is good enough to take me around the world."

Corrigan was quite positive when he said that—but he was equally certain when he told the officials at Floy Bennett Field, Sunday morning, that he was bound for his home town of Los Angeles.

Another statement of Corrigan's made authorities at Baldonnel Airport here wonder if, after all, the Californian might not attempt to buck the prevailing westerly winds and wing back to America.

"The machine is perfect," said Corrigan. "All it needs is a little grease, and it could take me back to New York."

Party Is Enjoyed By The K. of C., and C. D. of A.

The Knights of Columbus entertained the Catholic Daughters of America at a party Friday evening in the Knights of Columbus Home. William Gallagher was chairman of the affair and the evening was a most enjoyable one.

Eight acts of vaudeville formed the entertainment, and Phillip Mulligan, Philadelphia, served as master of ceremonies. The entertainment was procured through James McGuire, Philadelphia, formerly of Bristol, who is interested in dramatic club work. The remainder of the evening was enjoyed in a social way and dancing, followed by a delicious platter lunch consisting of deviled crab, potato salad, pickles, tomato and lettuce, rolls and coffee.

CHURCH AND HOMES TO BENEFIT UNDER WILL

Jacob B. Klein, Late of Sellersville, Leaves Estate of $10,000

THE SEYBOLD WILL

Two church homes and a Lutheran Church are to benefit under the terms of the will of Jacob B. Klein, late of Sellersville, who left a personal estate of $10,000. The will was entered for probate in the office of the Register of Wills at Doylestown.

To the Good Shepherd Home at Allentown, Klein bequeathed the income of a $1,000 trust fund, which has been created in the Union National Bank and Trust Company of Southerton, executors of the estate in cooperation with Harry K. Hartz, Little Zion's Lutheran Church, Indianfield, Montgomery county, was given a bequest of $500 outright to be used for church support, and the Eastern Mennonite Home, Southerton, will receive the sum of $300 outright for maintenance.

Two other churches, Indian Creek Reformed Church, Franconia, and Old Goschenhoppen Church, Upper Salford township, were each bequeathed the income of $300 trust funds, the money to be used in the care of graves.

Individual beneficiaries, numbering about 12, included the following: Leanna Wolford, a sister, Salfordville, $1,000; Katie B. Hartzell, a sister, of Sellersville, $1,000; Lizzie K. Nace, a sister, $1,000; Alice Dottrra, $1,000; Aaron B. Klein, a brother, $1,000; Edwin Shaw, Tytersport; Wilson L. Nace, Bergey; Paul Landis, Marvin Moyer, Howard Gehman, Russell Yoder, all of Sellersville, $100 each.

The residue of the estate will be inherited by nephews and nieces. Antonia Seybold, Bedminster township, who named Christian F. Seybold executor and left a personal estate of $630 and real estate valued at $5,000, including a 52 acre farm in Bedminster township, directed that Joseph, Henry Franz, Johannes Antonius and Sebastian Carl, sons, should receive $1 each and life insurance.

Christian, the husband, was bequeathed the entire estate, but directed to place in a trust company the sum of $1500 which shall be given to the grandchildren, Antonia Margaret Belli and Henry Philip Belli, with interest, when they become 21 years old.

Corrigan's Unauthorized Adventure "Great Thing"

WASHINGTON, July 19.—(INS)—"It's a great day for the Irish and we don't want to spoil their fun," Denis Mulligan, director of the Federal Bureau of Air Commerce, said today after learning of the unlicensed flight of Douglas Corrigan from New York to Dublin.

Smiling, Mulligan emerged from a conference with Assistant Secretary of Commerce J. Monroe Johnson, and observed that the unauthorized aerial adventure was "a great thing."

Corrigan, Mulligan said, probably would be "let down easy" by this government.

Mulligan, who likes to trace his ancestry back to the glorious days of Celtic history, said Corrigan's feat "just goes to show that you never know what an Irishman will do next."

He conceded, however, that the dignity of government must be brought into play in Corrigan's case.

"When he gets back to the United States, we probably will put him under gentle discipline," Mulligan said.

While the entire matter is under advisement, it was hinted that "gentle discipline" might entail temporary revocation of Corrigan's pilot's license.

Such action is the departments normal procedure in the case of daredevils who fly upside-down, through hangars and perform stunts which are frowned upon yet secretly admired by some of the governments aviation high command.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

A 5,000 mile free trip to Denver, Colorado, has been concluded by Morrell Brown, 18, son of E. Newlin Brown, Doylestown.

Young Brown was gone 25 days.

Morrell, who graduated from George School in June, came home over the southern route, which included Kentucky and Virginia. He spent some nights outside. He traveled alone and found it easy to get a "lift" by motorists. On several occasions he drove for his friends during the night while they slept.

"It is the only way to hitch-hike, travel alone," Brown said today. "It was the greatest trip of my life for I had experiences that money cannot buy."

The concluding service of the 16th annual Perkasee Evangelical Assembly was held Sunday evening, with the Rev. A. M. Koch, pastor of Germantown Evangelical Church, Philadelphia, delivering the sermon.

Bishop E. H. Hughes, of Washington, D. C., bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, spoke at the afternoon services. He discussed the coming of Christ, asserting that "whoever says he knows when the Lord is coming is a political romancer and a theological buccaner."

Named as delegates-at-large to the executive committee of the Evangelical Youth Union were: Helen Harp, Reading; Charles Griffith, Lancaster; Jane Brink, Wilkes-Barre; Richard Miller, Schuylkill Haven; Arthur Mitchell, Lansdale, and Harriet Schaeffer, Millersburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Taylor, Morrisville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Wanda Taylor, to Doyle Quigg, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Miss Taylor is a graduate of the Morrisville high school, Mercer Hospital School of Nursing, Trenton, N. J.

BRISTOL LAWYER AIDS YOUTH IN COUNTY JAIL

John P. Betz, Recalling Fishing Days As Lad, Helps In Plight

FISHED, MINUS LICENSE

To a Bristol lawyer, who has fond memories of the days when he was a fisher-lad, does a Trenton lad owe his freedom today.

For to Joseph Guerra, aged 16, of 429 Bert avenue, Trenton, is John P. Betz, Bristol lawyer, a friend in need. Offering his service gratis in Guerra's case, Betz pleaded in the lad's behalf yesterday in a habeas corpus proceeding before Judge Calvin S. Boyer, Doylestown.

Guerra, who was spending a few days on vacation, visiting his grandmother in this borough, was fishing in the canal here last Friday, minus a license. As Guerra was waiting for a nibble, a man approached and is said to have asked: "Catching anything?"

"Nope," replied young Guerra. "They won't bite. The water's too dirty."

"Well, you're under arrest. Come with me," is the reply attributed to the one who accosted the lad, and who proved to be Harry C. Cole, Norris-town, a fish and game warden.

English Monarchs Reach France

Boulogne, France, July 19.—Escorted by 26 of the finest units of the French fleet, King George and Queen Elizabeth of England arrived on French soil today on their way to Paris for a three day visit of state.

Boulevards of Paris were jammed for the arrival of the royal couple. Leading citizens, newspapers, etc., kept up a constant barrage of speeches on Anglo-French amity, intended for consumption in England and Italy as well as here. Premier Daladier promptly took advantage of the occasion to proclaim:

"The whole of France is aware of the amity which unites us to all peoples of the British empire. That friendship was forced in history and fed by the experience of the difficulties we have suffered together."

TO STAGE CARD PARTY

Mrs. Leo Lynn, chairman of the card party to be held Wednesday evening in St. James's parish house at 8.15 and sponsored by the Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women, announces that many fine prizes will be given. The public is asked to participate.

DAUGHTER BAPTISED

Harriet Caroline, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Durr, was baptised on Sunday morning in Christ Episcopal Church, Edgington, by the Rev. Arthur F. Gibson. The sponsors were Mrs. Gibson and Miss Blanche Anna Borrageale.

LATEST NEWS - - -

Received by International News Service Leased Wires.

Following closely upon the announcement that $75,000 has been allotted by the Federal authorities for a Post Office Building at Perkasee came an order to advertise for bids for a site for the building.

The site shall be, according to the specifications, approximately 125 x 170 feet, if a corner property, and 140 x 170 feet, if other than corner property. However, sites having different street frontage dimensions will be considered provided the area is approximately the same.

With the announcement that bids are in order there was a big rush at the local office for blank forms upon which bids shall be submitted. The bids will be opened in the local Post Office on July 27 at nine a. m.

Several days after the announcement that bids will be sought for a Post Office site came the announcement of the appointment of a clerk to fill the vacancy caused by the recent retirement on pension of Edward Kachline.

Elmer Reichey of the Third ward, long a substitute clerk-carrier, was promoted to the clerkship, and Cary Booz, substitute carrier, takes the full time job vacated by Reichey.

The promotions leave the local office without a substitute clerk and the list of eligibles is completely exhausted.

This morning Postmaster Trauger was advised that an examination for substitute clerk-carrier aspirants will be held in the near future. Aspirants are requested to procure an application form at the local Post Office and file it with Third United States Civil Service district on or before July 20. Applicants shall not be less than 18 nor more than 45 years of age.

Brief remarks were addressed to the gathering by the guests. Refreshments and a social time ensued.

Arrest Intruder In Nugent Home

Conshohocken, July 19.—Police expressed fear of a revival of kidnapping threat against Gerald Nugent, Jr., ten-year-old son of Gerry Nugent, president of the Philadelphia National League baseball club, following the arrest early this morning of an intruder in the Nugent home, here.

Charged with breaking and entering, a man identified as Edward Amos, 42, of Cedar Heights, Whitmarsh township, was arrested by a detective living in the Nugent home, when he discovered him on the first floor of the place. He was held for a hearing later today.

500 Chinese Burn To Death

Shanghai, July 19.—Five hundred Chinese were believed burned to death today when Japanese planes in their fourth raid on Hankow in three days, set fire to a crowded theatre with an incendiary bomb.

The 500 were trapped inside by flames, resulting from the explosion and all were believed burned to death. Twenty-seven airplanes dropped bombs for two hours in the worst attack at Hankow. American mission property was again endangered. Japanese airmen staged what their commanders call "the most daring attack in the history of the world's military aviation," calmly landing on an airfield and burning up twelve Chinese airplanes.

The winners are: George E. Talbot, 256 Monroe street, $3.

The above trio won the first, second and third prizes respectively for sending in the nearest correct last line for the following limerick: "A painter in Kalamazoo made pictures in yellow and blue, One day he used red, And his critics all said: That's a great work of art for a zoo."

The winners, as well as many other entrants, found the correct words for the last line in the advertisements of the following appearing in last Tuesday's issue of The Courier: That's, Wolson's Hardware Store; A. Moffo's Foot Comfort Shop; Great Dries; Foot, Woler's Paint and Wallpaper Store; Of, Marty Greens; Art, Factor's-to-You Furniture Company; For, Checker Stores; A. Spencers; Zoo, Auto Boys.

The winners of the prizes for the correct last line to the second limerick are: Miss Frances K. Blanch, Otter and Swain streets, $3.

Mrs. J. Richardson, 115 E. Maple avenue, Langhorne, $2.

Miss Caroline Weger, Bath Road, Bristol Township, $1.

The limerick with the correct last line follows: "Ill just speed right on past that red light."

Said a reckless young driver one night, "I'm late for the dance, So I'll take a chance."

'Twas the wreck of the fast "male" that night.

The scores of contestants from Bristol and the many surrounding towns in some instances used extra words, "Just," "In fact," "special," were some of the words that cropped to the fore.

Many who participated had the reply forms filled in exceptionally neat. Some use typewriters, others pen and ink or pencil. Those who did not clip the special coupon published in The Courier executed their own coupons.

Each week sees many more entering, and many individuals take part week after week, with the hope that their entry will be the nearest and thus secure for them a prize.

Today two more limericks appear. Get busy now and figure out the correct last lines. They are intriguing to say the least.

No Settlement Made In Strike At King Farms

"No settlement" is the report from King Farms Company this morning, regarding the strike of a portion of the employees Sunday, and the subsequent halt of all work at the farms near Morrisville yesterday.

According to the general manager, Karl King, 400 workers are at their duties today, but no settlement has been discussed.

The strike, which resulted in the assignment of a detail of officers from Pennsylvania Motor Police barracks, Doylestown, to the scene yesterday morning, was the climax of wage cuts.

Mr. King stated this morning that wages of the men on hourly rates was reduced five cents an hour, and of women three cents an hour.

"Violent threats have been received against our families," was another statement of the manager today.

Police are still on duty at the King Farms.

At Harriman Hospital this morning officials reported administering treatment to two men injured during the course of a demonstration at the King Farms. Anthony Argenti, Morrisville, was treated for contused wound of the forehead; and a second worker for contusions of the hand.

AFTER YEAR OF WAR

The vast store of philosophy which their race has accumulated through centuries of national ups and downs is of great value to the Chinese in their present trials. Proof of this may be found in a dispatch from Hankow which sums up China's terrific losses in the last twelve months—"half a million of her best troops, parts of ten provinces, most of her coastline with its ports through which poured revenue-producing goods . . . control of two-thirds of her railroad mileage and her greatest channel of commerce, the Yangtze River."

But, the dispatch adds, all this "has not brought China to her knees." On the contrary, the Chinese are confident of ultimate victory. Few Chinese believe victory will be won "by smashing successes on the battlefield," but spokesmen for the Chinese government insist that their country's "policy of attrition is succeeding, even while her armies are losing battles and territory."

This may provoke ironic comment, in some quarters; but the Chinese have some solid evidence to back up their theory. For the first time since the old Chinese Empire fell, all Chinese factions seem united. Even the Communists are fighting side by side with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalists—the latter party finally reunited after ten years of violent discord. The Japanese have won numerous battles; but nowhere have they succeeded in breaking down China's new united front. And Japan is paying a daily mounting price in men, materials and money. Some authorities believe that Japan already has paid a greater price than the conquest ever can be worth.

Confirmation of the Chinese theory of victory through attrition may be found in a Tokyo dispatch which describes Japanese chagrin over failure to win the expected quick victory in China—and the grave economic crisis which Japan now faces. Indeed, the Tokyo correspondent reports, "money has become more important than men; so that, in a sense, Japan's real battlefield is in New York and London, rather than in China."

If Japan is permitted to win on the New York and London battlefronts, American and British financiers are not so bright as they have been accused of being.

THE INDISPENSABLE NEWSPAPER

In no country in the world has newspaper development reached such stage as it has in this country.

People are hardly equipped to live in a modern community until they read thoroughly every issue of a good local newspaper. In fact this is the way they conserve their incomes, by learning of good opportunities to buy merchandise.

They become familiar with public movements and entertainments, and are able to enjoy many things that they would not hear about until they had happened, if they were not informed by the newspapers. They are thereby able to partake to the full of their community life, where with out such a newspaper thoroughly covering their field, they are on the side of the current of its life.

A gas station operator wants to be lieutenant governor of Pennsylvania because "this is the time for every American to stand up and be counted." Then what do we do—check the oil?

LOOKING FORWARD

By Franklyn Waltman

Publicity Director, Republican National Committee

None will dispute that President Roosevelt is the greatest political showman in our history. Indeed, he could give lessons to that synonym for ballyhoo and showmanship, P. T. Barnum.

In passing, it might be mentioned that for the first time in almost a century the great Barnum-Bailey-Ringling Brothers circus has been forced off the road and into winter quarters in the middle of its season—a victim of hard times. Apparently not even the "greatest show on earth" could compete with the New Deal circus.

But to return to Mr. Roosevelt. Like the illustrious Barnum, the President frequently is far more entertaining and diverting than he is accurate. Like Barnum, Mr. Roosevelt is not above pious humbuggery and hokum—not to say political hypocrisy—in order to hold the attention of his audience.

Mr. Roosevelt's recent barn-storming trip across the country affords several illuminating examples of how much like Barnum his methods and technique are. In his Oklahoma City speech Mr. Roosevelt professed to "remember," and not too accurately, events in the history of that State which occurred when he was seven and eight years old.

It is odd that Mr. Roosevelt's memory goes back so far when it fails him miserably regarding events of less than six years ago. For instance, in his speech at Covington, Kentucky, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"On my Kentucky visit in 1932 my train moved slowly from Covington to Louisville and then in a southeasterly direction through villages and farming sections and mining districts. As we stopped at small stations crowds congregated. Hunger stared out at me from the faces of men and women and little children.

"It was a chill day and for the actual want of clothes people stood there shivering."

Mr. Roosevelt went on to assert that as he and "dear Alben" Barkley on that day in 1932 stood on the rear platform of the campaign train looking on these scenes "tears were in our eyes."

As Mr. Roosevelt's voice, quivering with pathos, over the radio, described that scene I was deeply affected until suddenly I remembered that as a newspaper reporter I was on that trip with him. At once the events of that day stood out in my mind—and I could not recall such details of misery.

Indeed, I remembered it was a bright day, marked by warm sunshine. I could not recall any tears in Mr. Roosevelt's eyes, although I had observed him at each stop we made. I recalled him as his usual gay, smiling self. Moreover, I remembered, we did not come to Louisville on that trip by way of Covington. We came into Kentucky from the West, enroute from St. Louis.

Memory, however, sometimes plays tricks on one, so I went to the newspaper files and re-read the stories that some of my colleagues wrote of that days trip. Their accounts coincided with my memory of that day.

Walker S. Buel, the veteran and able Washington correspondent of the Democratic Cleveland Plain Dealer, wrote that Mr. Roosevelt "received a typical Dixie welcome while he traversed Kentucky" and that "he had a day of brilliant sunshine and bright blue sky after crossing the Ohio River this morning."

James A. Hagerty in the New York Times described the trip through Kentucky as "a cheering journey." Ernest K. Lindley, Mr. Roosevelt's campaign biographer, in the New York Herald-Tribune reported that Mr. Roosevelt concluded his Louisville speech that day with the line: "The sun shines bright on my old Kentucky home."

Most convincing of all, however, is the account of Ulric Bell of the Louisville Courier-Journal, one of the most ardent journalistic supporters in the country, then and now, of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Bell wrote that "the swing through the State progressed under smiling skies" and he further reported that "all members of the Roosevelt family expressed delight over the cheerful warmth of Kentucky's greeting."

Graphic substantiation of Mr. Bell's description was found on other pages of the Courier-Journal in photographs showing in the crowds greeting Mr. Roosevelt men in shirt-sleeves and without vests and in the weather report showing the temperature was above 62 degrees—and as high as 71 degrees—during the entire time Mr. Roosevelt was in Kentucky, hardly the temperature of a chilly day.

Not one of these able newspapermen—all friendly toward Mr. Roosevelt—reported the scene of misery he described six years later and not one reported detecting any tears in his eyes. What a crowd of punk reporters we must have been!

But they did report that on that day Mr. Roosevelt at one of his stops told a story of a hitch-hiker whom he said he had met and who claimed to have managed to get from coast to coast in 10 days by holding up a sign which read: "If you don't give me a ride, I'll vote for Hoover."

Today the same story is being told about Mr. Roosevelt, except that now this mythical hitch-hiker is said to have traveled from the Atlantic to the Pacific in four days by threatening to vote again for Mr. Roosevelt.

LIMERICK CONTEST RULES

For a period of 13 weeks, THE COURIER is conducting a Limerick Contest, awarding $6 weekly in cash prizes for each Limerick. The words of the last line of the Limerick will be found mixed in the advertisements on the Limerick pages only. No one is required to create and write the last line. By being a keen and careful observer in reading, these words can readily be found. There is lots of fun in the Limerick Contest, so why not get eyes and pencil working right now. The rules of the contest follow:

The first answer stands no better chance than the last, provided it reaches The Courier office by 3 P. M., Thursday, following the publication date of the previous paper. A prize is NOT offered to EVERY correct solver, but from those that are correct the judges will select three of the neatest and best, and to these solvers prizes will be awarded.

There will be Three Prizes EACH week for each Limerick. The First Prize will be $3.00; the Second Prize, $2.00; and the Third Prize, $1.00.

The contest is open to anybody and everybody except employees of The Courier and members of their families. Answers may be written on the regular coupon printed in The Courier or on sheets of paper, and may be written by hand or typewritten.

On the special pages in today's issue of The Courier will be found the "Limerick," a short verse, with the last line left blank. The necessary words to fill in this line have been added to the advertisements printed on that page.

The advertisements are all set as written by the advertiser, and then these words are added. It's lots of fun to hunt for these missing words, and you'll enjoy it, especially as you have the opportunity of being a prize winner.

Write or typewrite these extra words, together with the advertisements from which they are taken, and the FULL LINE on the printed coupon or on a sheet of paper, with your name and address, and bring or mail so it will reach The Courier Office by Thursday, 3 P. M.

The number of words in the last line of the Limericks to be published, will be found in from four to nine advertisements and each week the maximum number of lines on which to fill in the missing word and the name of the advertiser where it appears, will be printed on the coupon. Address Limerick Contest Editor.

COMMUNICATION

Editor of The Courier:

The 15th annual lawn fete under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of Harriman Hospital will be held August 8 to 13, inclusive.

In addition to the lawn fete we are making an effort to contact our friends requesting contributions for Harriman Hospital. The donations are entirely separate from the affair itself and are not incorporated in any profits or fees allowed the management of the fete. These contributions are definitely an indication of their generosity and kindness to us.

The annual deficit in the conduct of hospitalization at the present time is a very difficult problem but it would become monotonous if we were to persistently describe a condition that everyone knows exists. In the larger metropolitan centers campaigns are being conducted by leading men of the nation which will accumulate millions of dollars for the assistance and care of the indigent poor. In connection with this matter of hospitalization the editorials in the press and articles in popular magazines have made people "hospital-minded" so they are able to discuss modern methods such as social medicine, hospital insurance and health insurance.

In this country having had no experience with the matter of social medicine, it obviously would be a dangerous practice when we consider the relationship existing between the profession and patients on terms of finest cordiality over a period of hundreds of years. There does not appear to be any serious complaint from either side.

Health insurance has many constructive features but it is a new issue and, although it may some day be accepted, at the present time no action has been taken of any serious proportion.

However, the question of hospital insurance has become very popular and well-received by the people. In this locality only a very small proportion of the fathers of families could afford to pay twenty-five dollars a year but in the larger cities thousands upon thousands have applied for this type of protection. It may prove successful, but for the average layman it is quite lacking in its effort to protect and assist in the financing of medical emergencies and hospitalization because it does not include professional service fees. Although the hospital charges are insured, it may be that the person holding the insurance may not be permitted to select a private physician. Most certainly the assured in selecting a special hospital included in the group insurance, according to our opinion, would not be allowed to employ the services of a selected doctor in a closed-staff hospital because only certain physicians are permitted to admit patients to the hospital and if the patient is admitted to a private room the attending physician or surgeon will be allowed to present a professional service fee. At the present time if a patient is unable to finance hospitalization in a ward no professional service fee is required because most of the large hospitals receive enormous State Aid anyway and it could not be reasonably expected that a doctor would charge for his services if the State is assuming the care of an indigent patient. Although it is not generally understood, any person accepting free admission to a hospital is considered an indigent person. At least the hospital charges are paid by the taxpayers and not from any large endowment received from some wealthy source or some "Gold Mine in The Sky."

On the other hand, information has been received from a large insurance company that for an equal premium rate in that company not only are hospital charges included but the physician's and surgeon's fees likewise are paid up to the amount of $150. Until this confusion and uncertainty have subsided it seems almost unwise to advise people to invest unless the situation is understood. It seems to us only sensible that if the head of a family is to obtain insurance it should be complete and final the same as other insurance policies. To be satisfactory this plan of insurance should not only include the hospital charges but professional service fees as well. Already rumors have been heard from some of the physicians that the hospitals are beginning to care very little about the situation of the doctors as long as they are fully protected themselves. It would be a splendid plan but we personally have grave doubts that it can be successfully promulgated.

The most difficult feature of the problem of modern times has been the wide difference between the cap-

KNOW YOUR STATE

Levels of Planning

(Prepared for The Courier by F. A. Plikin, Executive Director, Pennsylvania State Planning Board)

If Public Planning is to be effective to the greatest possible degree, it must of necessity be conducted at each governmental level with, of course, a co-ordinated activity among all. It is unwise to assume that a national, state or regional planning agency could handle competently the planning, for instance, of the physical detail of every county, city, borough and township within its limits. But, on the other hand, there are problems and conditions which extend beyond the boundaries of our municipalities, and it is equally unwise to expect the same results from what would amount to piecemeal planning for these problems by local agencies as from the one large Master Plan of a broad scale agency, such as national, state and regional.

Professors William E. Cole and Hugh P. Crowe, of the University of Tennessee, in their book, "Recent Trends in Rural Planning," define the major fields of concentration in which broad scale planning is feasible as being: 1. human resources planning; 2. natural resources planning; 3. economic planning; 4. governmental planning.

Local planning, however, is concerned primarily with the physical development of the individual community.

In spite of this distinction, the two types of planning—local and regional—can and must co-operate upon problems that affect both. Flood control, stream pollution, highway development and recreational facilities are some of these problems. In the matter of flood control, for instance, a good example of co-operation between the various levels of planning agencies may be shown. The planning agency of a community menaced by high-waters desires to put an end to the annual destruction of property by the Spring floods. Its first step should be to arrange for co-operation with the regional planning commission, an agency which should embrace the drainage basin of the stream causing the havoc, and with the State Planning Board. Thus, the knowledge that each of these agencies possesses upon flood control may be pooled to mutual advantage, because while the state and regional planning agencies will be equally as interested in keeping the flood waters out of the local planning commission's community, as is the latter, they will also have the broader view of looking toward the effect the various types of flood protection might have upon other communities farther down the river. It will be found that the best interests of the greatest number will be served more perfectly through such co-operation.

Pennsylvania has at this writing 63 local planning commissions, 28 of which are in cities and a like number in boroughs. The other seven are distributed among counties (two) and first-class townships (five). For broad-scale planning, Pennsylvania has its State Planning Board and is co-operating with neighboring states through the Inter-State Commission on the Delaware Basin, Tri-State Planning Commission, and the Ohio Valley Planning Commission.

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Amusing jewelry, like the mad comedy, is losing its hold on the American public for the simple reason that it has been overdone. Lapel ornaments made to be laughed at and charm bracelets with unique dangles were fun to "spring on the crowd" but were never intended to be lived with indefinitely.

They are just an interlude. Beauty has been revived as the important attribute of jewelry, and the trend is toward the sort of thing our mothers and grandmothers loved.

Red and yellow gold have made great headway within the last few months with most of Hollywood's June brides preferring wedding rings of bright gold to white, and other girls having their precious stones reset in gold with a coppery glint.

Cut steel also rides in on the crest of the revival wave. We designers are using it for embroidered designs as well as for buckles. Florence Rice is one of the first to okay it for buckles, using small square ones, which have been in her family for years, on toeless black kid pumps and placing a third matching one on a black jersey turban. Jane Wyman sticks hatpins with cut-steel heads through one of her doll-size hats to hold it at a tilted angle on her head.

It isn't only the metals of 30 years ago that are creating a stir among the chic women of the picture colony, but the actual jewelry pieces themselves. We noticed Jean Benedict recently wearing a little watch face-downward suspended from a coppery gold bow-knot and pinned to a slim powder blue street dress.

Lola Lane has had a silver mesh bag of her mother's re-styled. The result is a stunning evening bag. Since fine metallic mesh fits so well into the current fashion picture it can hardly escape a rebirth in popularity this fall. The fitted vanity cases of that period have already staged a comeback. One of the most exquisite ones is owned by Bette Davis. Concealed in generous proportions, this is oblong-shaped, is made of dark green calfskin and lined in matching satin. It is fitted with all-gold trap-pings set with green semi-precious gems.

Bejeweled lingerie clips are another item to be considered since sheer blouses and bright camisoles re-enter the scene. And, of course, it's no longer startling news that we'll see as many ear-rings and hatpins this Fall as were ever noted in the period to which we are rapidly returning.

There is a good market for suites of furniture which you are replacing with new ones. Spend 25c for a "for sale" adv. in The Bristol Courier, and the sale will be consummated.

For that matter it's yive "Josette" in Bristol as long as the Grand Theatre runs this so-la-la-laughing love escapade by 20th Century-Fox.

This spicy, tantalizing story is gay er than a Mardi Gras, with these three delightful stars. Don is more romantic than you've known him on screen or radio. Simone is the tantalizing little French coquette. She's got zis! And she's got zat! And Bob is the ardent swain who won't take no for an answer—not even in French!

It all starts gaily on its way when Don and Bob decide that their Papa is too ardently chesherizing la femme—Josette. The fact that Simone is innocent of all guile as regards Papa—and that there is another woman in the case—only adds to the merry madness. For Don and Bob pack Papa off on a trip and decide to take Josette into their own hands... or arms, as it later develops.

The denouement can not be divulged here, but let it be said that "Josette," merry with its Gordon and Revel songs, has the kick of a sazarac cocktail!

Three new song hits by Hollywood's ace tunesmiths are featured in the musical background of the film. These, which already are crowding the kilocycles, are "May I Drop A Petal In Your Glass Of Wine?" "In Any Language" and "Where In The World."

BRISTOL

Patrons of the Bristol Theatre have a real treat in the coming of the new Irish motion picture, "Kathleen," today, now on its fifth month to capacity houses at the Squire Theatre, New York. All fans, irrespective of race or creed, took this picture right to their hearts and of course, the Irish flocked to see it, especially so on account of the heads of their organizations passing resolutions in praise of the film.

"Miss Maryland"

Yolanda Ugarte

One of the first states to select its standard bearer for the annual contest at Atlantic City, Labor Day week-end, to select "Miss America" was Maryland, where pretty Yolanda Ugarte, Baltimore belle, was given the nod.

"Kathleen" was made entirely in Ireland with a cast of professionals from the Abbey theatre players of Dublin headed by the vivacious and charming young motion picture actress, Sally O'Neill, Tom Burke, the famed Irish opera singer, Sara Allgood, well-known picture actress on both sides of the Atlantic, and the champion step dancer of Ireland, Rory O'Connor.

talists and the proletariat. The former is a product of the success of the past hundred years but the latter is more recent in origin. Both deserve equal rights but hospital insurance obviously does not attach either of these two widely separated sources of collective bargaining. On the contrary, it involves only the middle class and they who are wise enough to appreciate will maintain a close study of the immense possibilities of insurance. Personally, we can see many features that will be unprofitable to the insurance carrier. So that regardless of the problem of hospital insurance, one of the most important aspects remains without consideration and that is the care of the indigent. That term does not include only the heedless and unworthy but as a matter of fact embraces a high percentage of worthy citizens. People at the end of the year even with the strictest observation of the rules of economy have a deficit that is bound to continue so that hospitalization and professional services are debts that must be arranged on the deferred-payment plan. Hospital insurance will be a splendid method for those who can afford it but as the endless ages run people always could arrange financial matters.

So in maintaining a hospital in a community it must always be realized that if satisfactory services are to be rendered every emergency must be admitted promptly and with accuracy and despatch and the question of financial remuneration should never be considered. That has been the basis of our plan for the past sixteen years. However, if the cases admitted require a long period of hospitalization, some funds must be in reserve to arrange a satisfactory budget.

This information is incorporated in this annual appeal because we want to consider the matter of hospitalization intelligently and not just the collection of funds. Our hospital is a private institution and conducted as a semi-public project. If it will have served to create a body of "hospital-minded" citizens we will be pleased as we feel the day is fast approaching when the people themselves will realize that a community cannot be a complete organization until hospitalization has received appropriate attention. Each community will build, conduct and manage its hospital with equal enthusiasm and pride as it would its fire department or water works. That no doubt will not be in our time because services have been fairly satisfactory, but once a tragic situation is called to the attention of the public they will not fail to give proper attention. Only last month in a large community with all its hospitals there was no place to admit a case of surgical complications involed in a child affected with scarlet fever. Every proud large city maintains its own hospitalization and there is no reason why smaller communities, pro rata, should not do likewise. If you approve of the maintenance and continuation of a hospital of our type, we would ask you to please send your contribution either to Mrs. Wm. E. DeGroot, Bristol, or Wm. H. H. Fine, Farmers National Bank, Bristol. All contributions will be published in the Bristol Courier.

Finally, we want to emphasize that we are deeply grateful for your many kindnesses in the past.

Very truly yours,

'BLACK SENATORS' WILL PLAY HERE TOMORROW

The "Black Senators," from Washington, D. C., members of the National Negro Baseball League, will oppose Landreth's Seeds tomorrow at 6:15 p. m., on Landreth's field.

This is the first time that the Black Senators have appeared in this part of the country, although they have played in the South and also throughout the Mid-West. They are now on their Eastern trip, meeting other members of the Negro National League, such as Bolden's Philadelphia Stars, Brooklyn Royals, New York Black Yankees, etc., and will stop off at Bristol for a game tomorrow, Wednesday evening. This club is playing fine ball, and those baseball fans who wish to see a good game, no doubt will be well pleased with the contest at the Landreth Ball Park tomorrow evening.

Manager Landreth will have Mel Heisley on the mound for the Farmers, with Harvey behind the plate.

Two Twilight League Games Booked Tonight

The games of the Bristol Twilight League scheduled for last night were called off because of rain.

Two games are on the card tonight, St. Ann's playing Grundy's on the latter's field with McGinley umpiring and Tomlinson scoring. On the Edgely diamond the league-leading Rohm & Haas nine plays the Odd Fellows. Della will umpire and Juno score.

POSTPONE BOUTS

The amateur boxing bouts scheduled for the St. Ann's A. A. outdoor arena last night were postponed until next Monday night because of rain. There may be a few changes in the card which will be announced later.

Comly, with demonstrations by the groups; guitar duet, Ethel Vornhold and Evelyn Thorpe; presentation of a Christian flag, the same to be the property of the D. V. C. S., but offered for use of the church and community at any time; theme song, "Follow the Gleam," school; formal salutes to the Christian and the American flags, with "America" and "Onward Christian Soldiers" being sung; benediction, the Rev. Comly.

Awards of certificates were made to students who have been present at each session, and booklets were given to those who missed three sessions or less.

Handiwork executed during the school was also displayed. The kindergarten group made sewing cards and booklets; primary girls, beach hats, and primary boys, dart boards, with all primary students executing picture plaques; junior and intermediate girls, peasant plates, Scottie dog pot-holders, quilt blocks; and the boys of the group forming belts from inner-tubes. The junior and intermediate girls and boys also fashioned funnel ivy vases.

The theme of the school this season was "The Growing Christ." The faculty included: Mrs. Bucher, dean; Mrs. Edwin M. Lathrop and Miss Evelyn Thorpe, kindergarten; Mrs. Kenneth Comly, Miss Ethel Vornhold, primary; Mrs. Albert Wunsch, Miss Frances Comly, juniors; the Rev. Comly, intermediates. The pianist was Miss Mary Thompson; and secretary, Miss Helen Woolman.

STATE NEWS

LANDSDOWNE—(INS)—A 58-year-old rose bush that bloomed from a "stick" planted in the ground is the prized possession of Horace Hatfield. As a boy Hatfield noticed a thorny branch in his back yard in Philadelphia and idly stuck it in the ground. The "stick" took root and grew into a flourishing rose bush. Since then it has accompanied the family in each move to a new location, and it still blooms.

The average life of a rose bush is 10 to 20 years, a Lansdowne florist said, adding that he had never heard before of a bush that survived two transplantings.

CHARLOTTE—(INS)—Doctors and nurses at Charleroi-Monessen Hospital were astounded recently by what they believed was the birth of a "two-headed baby," but their astonishment knew no bounds as they marvelled when a surgeon, in a speedy operation, 15 minutes after the birth of the seven-pound girl, restored the infant to normalcy.

The operation was performed without anesthesia and a one and one-half pound hydro-menogocel (water tumor) was removed from the side of the infant's head.

Later it was found that the menogocel, an obstetrical rarity, weighed more than the tot's head and was attached to the menegocel so as to give the resemblance of a second head.

Apparently a normal case in every respect, the hydro-menogocel became increasingly large and an emergency call was placed. Suspecting that any delay was serious, the surgeon, whose identity remains secret, proceeded to operate upon the sack-like tumor. Rushed in the work and with no other equipment than obstetrical instruments he proceeded with the delicate task. The greatest danger—that of meningitis—was overcome and the operation was a success.

Such menogocels are not infrequent, medical authorities said, but usually they form on the backs of babies where they are readily removable but almost usually fatal.

THE OPEN DOOR to Health and Happiness

A Wholesome Discussion of a Personal, Family and Social Problem

THE MODERN HEALTH LIBRARY WILL ANSWER THESE QUESTIONS FOR YOU

What are the bad results of worry and how can I stop it?
What are the most important practical facts modern science has discovered about food?
What influence does correct weight have on health?
Can colds be cured, or must they be endured?
What is the best way to plan the family budget?
Is it possible for modern men and women to be really happy?

THE AUTHORS

WILLIAM S. SADLER, M.D., and LENA K. SADLER, M.D.

The Doctors Sadler were pioneers in the popularization of preventive medicine—the presentation of the facts of mental and physical hygiene to the public.

They are teachers and writers of wide experience, being the authors of more than a score of volumes on health and hygiene. They bring to this work a ripe professional experience of more than thirty years.

The Doctors are authors of medical text books and are members of the leading medical and scientific bodies of this country.

These library-size volumes bound in luxurious red morocco grained fabricoid, gold stamped, provide a welcome addition to the discriminating home. The large type, the fine paper, and the durable binding assures long life to this valuable set.

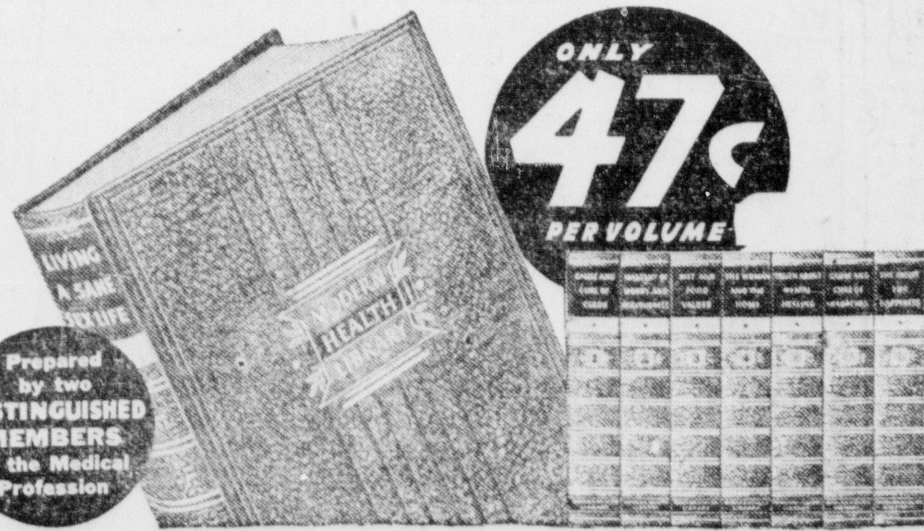

We are living in an enlightened age. No longer need the veil of ignorance, prejudice and superstition envelope our thinking and habits. The discoveries of science—the vast researches of the medical profession—have opened the door to health and happiness for individuals, families, and society.

Today, the age-old problem of sex finds a happy solution in the determined effort made by the medical profession to rip away the veil of ignorance and prejudice and—through the medium of the printed page—discuss with you—and your family—the way to a wholesome and sane sex life.

For the young couples about to embark on life's greatest adventure—for the couples who have already set sail—for fathers and mothers who grapple with the problem of providing wholesome sex knowledge for their children—this volume is at once a guidebook and an inspiration—a sound, sane and simple treatment of the subject.

LIVING A SANE SEX LIFE—vol. eight of the MODERN HEALTH LIBRARY is by no means another "sex book." The authors discuss the many complex problems of a normal sex life and offer a sane solution—not academic theories, but a rational and intelligent combination of scientific fact and human understanding. The authors' relationship (husband and wife) permits a new, wholesome approach to a much abused topic. It will be a welcomed volume in the home library—to read—and keep for constant ready reference.

HOW TO GET THE MODERN HEALTH LIBRARY

If you have delayed in starting your Health Library don't put it off any other day. Turn now to page one and tear out the first certificate. When you have six, consecutively numbered, present them at the Courier office, together with 47c (for each volume). Do this each week for eight weeks and you will then be the proud owner of a valuable aid to health and happiness.
